

Looking them over
JACK KELLY

THREE days Canadians have become resigned to opening their newspapers each day and finding that the nation's all-out war effort has deprived them of another luxury of peace-time comfort, but today Canadians will discover that the war is going to give them something for a change—flocks of sheep on their golf courses.

That is the suggestion that was advanced at Ottawa yesterday when supply chiefs tackled the problem of how Canada could raise another million head of sheep for the urgently needed wool.

These said supply chiefs apparently did not go very deeply into just how this was to be done—whether golf clubs were to invade the sheep, these out their fairways for pasture, and so on. You gather, though, that the suggestion is intended to apply only to the smaller rural courses.

This will be nothing new to a number of clubs around Alberta who have been using sheep for years in place of expensive grass-cutting machinery. They do a final-class job on the fairways and rarely bother the sand greens, although it is a bit annoying to have your best drive of the day hit a sheep when there is every indication that the ball may go another 40 yards.

Personally I am very strong for sheep on golf courses, for they clean out all the underbrush and rough and it is no trouble at all to find your ball and play it out. In view of the urgent need of finding all last ball this season, sheep may be the answer.

How Does Fritz Take It?

ONE of the things we all wonder about these days is how the average Nazi soldier is taking the blitz that is now roaring back at him. He was cocky, gay and blustering as he galloped over European countries that gave him nothing much more than a good quaking before quitting. How does he like it now that he has met Igor, Joe and Peter, the boys from Russia who are far tougher than he ever thought of being? And how does this cocky little Nazi feel after the Russian winter as he stands in mud and slush up to his thighs in the snow?

The answer to these questions was given recently in a strange broadcast from Berlin. The speaker painted such a gloomy picture of the German troops that many believe it was an intentional stab at a secret group working to end the Nazi regime. On the surface the broadcast seemed to do nothing more than depict the terrible hardships the troops are bravely facing, but actually it pictured a weary, heart-achingly army.

The broadcast was for German consumption only. Here are a couple of paragraphs from it:

"Where have I seen this N.C.O.'s face before? Yes, on the Rug, and I remember the date, it was June 21. We was full of life and the joy of living. We was taking happiness to send home. I ask him now, 'Where is your camera?' 'Gone,' he turns away and leaves me without a further word. I cannot forget his face.

"What is there in these faces that fascinates me? It is not that they are unshaven, that they are drawn by the sufferings of the last days. It is not that their outward military appearance has almost disappeared, nor that they are abashed. It is something else. They are not the chattering, laughing youngsters who eight months ago covered thousands of kilometers and still laughed and sang. They have become warriors, men whose life means war. War has entered into their innermost soul. War has lured them from these endless wastes, has burned them with fire and frozen them with icy blasts. War has made them men. Let them all come! How icy is this Soviet winter? Icy to the very marrow of their bones, to their very hearts. All this I seemed to read in their face."

Conn, Pastor Listed As Only Logical Contenders

WASHINGTON, April 16—(AP)—Billy Conn and Bob Pastor, the two fighters tentatively scheduled to tangle with Joe Louis before the coming summer end, were listed as the "logical contenders" for the heavyweight championship in the National Boxing Association's new quarterly rankings.

Conn, who was 13 rounds out of the fight last June and scheduled for a re-match in June, was listed as the top contender. Pastor moved into the selected list after his victory over Tommy Thompson, Lem Franklin and other contenders.

Chief changes in other divisions found Jimmy Brine, Cleveland champion, last night retained his title, as he won over Pat Price of Texas by disqualification. McCredy was awarded the bout after 24-round fight, three him out of the ring and prevented him from getting back in.

FOUR CANADIANS APPEAR IN RANKINGS
WASHINGTON, April 16—(CP)—Four Canadian boxers, led by little Jackie Callura of Hamilton, Ont., and Monty Dave Castiloux of Vancouver, were ranked in the National Boxing Association's quarterly ratings issued Wednesday.

Callura, Canadian featherweight fighter, received the highest ranking, that of "logical contender" for Pittsburgh Jackie Wilson's 126-pound crown. Callura was placed in the same class with Charlie (Lulu) Constantino, undefeated in 33 straight fights, and Chucky Wright of Los Angeles, who is recognized as the No. 1 contender in the division.

Callura is scheduled to meet Wilson for the title in Providence, R.I., in May or June.

Castiloux, the Dominion's lightweight and welterweight ruler, and a perennial in the N.B.A.'s ratings, was listed as an "outstanding boxer." Another Montrealer, young Harry Harris, was mentioned in passing. Both are in the Royal Canadian Air Force.

In the heavyweight class, Vancouver's Kenny Lindsay received honorable mention.

Montreal Sports Director "Cans" Athletes For Hobby

MONTREAL, April 16—(AP)—By some folks can fruit and others can vegetables, but Morrie Bruker, director of physical education at the Montreal Y.M.H.A., an athletes. At present his collection of canned athletes amounts to several hundred, including amateurs and professionals of note.

The canned athletes of Bruker's are rolls of movie films depicting the fundamentals of sport and other recreational activities.

Bruker started canning his athletes in 1932 and now has a library of 20 movies outlining as many activities. He is one of Montreal's leading non-commercial movie makers and professional movie people say his work is outstanding.

"If an athlete has something that will help the youngsters get a better grasp on the particular game, I'd be everything possible to get him in my collection of canned athletes," Bruker explains.

"It isn't easy to have him demonstrate in person so when I want to show anything to the boys it's quite simple to roll up the screen and start grinding."

The success of this first venture inspired him and he has produced 20 other movies on baseball, basketball, football, boxing, wrestling, lacrosse, swimming, diving, life-saving, camp life, indoor recreation and other sports activities.

As copies are not available, Bruker never lets the films go out of his hands, but he shows them regularly, without cost, to schools and sports groups throughout the city. Morrie will have his stuff all right but he tags along with the "canned goods."

Among the latest to contribute their time and knowledge to this movie were the top-ranking New York Rangers line of Brian Hextall, Phil Watson and Lynn Patrick.

With the aid of scale models of hockey players on a rink prepared to scale, these players made a movie of their plays which Bruker recorded on his movie film.

Like all his other sport films, Bruker starts his "Hockey Fundamentals" from the ground up, starting with the rules of the game.

"First he depicts in a movie, in a game, develops it into a drill and coordinates it into play. In this way the youngsters know just how

Expect $100,000 From First Game

NEW YORK, April 16—(AP)—Baseball fired a double-barrel salvo in support of the United States' war effort today as Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis and the advisory council worked out plans for the two big all-star games next July and two clubs, the Giants and Dodgers, announced the setting aside of two games for army and navy charities.

The all-star shows were assigned to the Polo Grounds in New York for Monday, July 6, and to Cleveland's mammoth municipal stadium for July 7—and in an effort to get the greatest possible turnout both affairs were scheduled as night games.

There is a good chance that the second contest will be played between a combined major league all-star squad and a team of stand-out players now in the armed services.

The usual prices will be doubled in the six-figure $100,000 Sequel Centennial stadium, the chestnut of Sun Tuddy held off Whirly's rush to win by a half length, when Arnold Hanger's Harvard Square and Bing Me, in order, close behind.

The time was 1:12.5.

The Giants and Dodgers are going to give the entire proceeds of two of their games with each other to the army and navy relief. These are regularly scheduled encounters in Brooklyn May 7 (for the navy) and one at New York, Aug. 8.

Down in Iowa the state board of education bans an annual high school basketball tournament, and the newspaper, the report of the week's games also proved interesting. The state is divided into districts, and the district winners gather at Des Moines and play down for a state winner. And while there are sections of the province where basketball seems to have some hold yet within a few miles of those same sections residents report that they never see a game played. And the Edmonton exhibition officials have announced that their tournament is cancelled for this year.

It is regrettable at least from the young folk standpoint that provincial officials of Alberta have never seemed to approve of sports and drama to help out sports and athletics.

High School Boy Shapes Up Like Another Johnson

SAN FRANCISCO, April 16—(AP)—Baseball's best pitching find since Bobby Fellers fast one started making batters blink a few years ago may be wrapped up in the giant frame of Carl De Rose, a 19-year-old boy fresh out of a California high school.

Equally interesting is the fact he is ticketed for the world champion New York Yankees by way of their major farm club system.

De Rose was signed to a Kansas City contract but Yankee scout, Joe Devine, who signed him, recommended he be sent to a class C club, to Amsterdam (N.Y.) in the Canadian-American League.

Big, good-natured De Rose may feel like he has two left feet while fielding a bunt but when he gets the feet four inches and 218 pounds of bulk behind a pitch, baseball men have violent hunches Walter Johnson or Feller.

"Every county dream has been to find another Johnson or, more lately another Feller," said Devine. "I think I've reached my goal in this kid."

Willard Marshall Makes Debut

Giant Rookie, Unheralded Crashes Baseball's Bigtime

NEW YORK, April 16.—(AP)—The rookie who has made the flashiest debut in the major leagues this year is Willard Marshall, an unheralded outfielder of the New York Giants, whose story is one of baseball's strange interludes.

When he batted a terrific belt into the upper right field stand at Polo Grounds for a home run with the bases loaded to beat Brooklyn Dodgers 4-1 yesterday, a crowd of people was wondering who he was and where he had been.

They didn't get any help from the Giants' spring roster because he wasn't on it.

The big, rangy youngster has been in organized baseball only two years—both of them with Atlanta Crackers of the Southern Association. As a kid fresh out of Wake Forest College he was something of a sensation his first season, getting 14 home runs and batting .314 in 1940.

Every major league club was interested in him and Earl, Earl, president of the Crackers, placed a $50,000 price tag on his prize. He wanted real money and so he result the bidding suddenly ceased.

Last winter Brooklyn turned him down for $20,000 because he had become susceptible to the flu.

Finally the Giants took him out of camp on a basis of no down payment and $50,000 if they kept him. Mel Ott took a quick look at the recruit in Miami and made him a regular outfielder, first in center and eventually in left. Now he has come right up to the National League competition with flag flying.

Bill Brandt—Regular One Man Baseball Encyclopedia

NEW YORK, April 16.—(BUP)—When a baseball writer wonders how many double Arkie Vaughan smacked into left field at the Polo Grounds in June of 1938, who struck out oftentimes after 4 p.m. last season, or whether the winning hand of the big game that night in Chicago was four kings or a full house—he just picks up the telephone and dials Circle 7-2292. — Then he asks for Bill Brandt.

Within 15 seconds the writer has obtained all the specific information he has requested and in another minute he finds he has been furnished with complete case histories of all subjects involved, including Arkie Vaughan, Ted Field, the Polo Grounds, Forbes Field, eastern daylight saving time, and the relative merits of a flash and a straight bat.

Technically, this husky gentleman who led the current statistics known as the head of the National League Service Bureau. Actually he is a one man encyclopedia, the editor and staff of the annual National League year book and the purveyor of most facts and figures that you can find during a three-day visit to Henry Morgan's office.

Into the green book, a 50-page volume designed to fit inside the cover of a post typewriter, the National League Service Bureau has collected every other team through every season since 1900, personal sketches of every player coming up through the year, and enough other assorted statistics to keep a squad of bookkeepers on 24-hour duty for a month.

For instance, he devises seven pages to pitchers alone, he lists their team records, their "honorable" records, their "home run" statistics.

It is distributed free to baseball and feature writers and the fans never see a copy unless they pick up a copy second hand. — A fan in the backroom of the Polo Grounds last year obtained one and he wrote a letter to the editor arguing the accuracy of some obscure figure. The circulation reached a year or two ago, 2,000.

Brandt, working with the Elias Sports Bureau, turns out columns all by himself. It is represented in part in thousands of newspapers, magazines, and books, and it has served as the inspiration for hundreds of rainy day stories and news columns you read from time to time on the sports pages or hear in the radio.

— To a writer it is invaluable. "If you like it," Brandt said when he had finished, "I'll send you a story if you know that in 1963 the Boston Braves set record at once."

Leaves Must Win To Stay In Race

TORONTO, April 16.—With games being played to night in the final rounds for premier honors in three hockey divisions, playoffs are close to the end of the title trail for 1942.

A bid to tie up the Stanley Cup series in order to force a seventh and deciding contest at Maple Leaf Gardens here on Saturday night.

In Ottawa, the Port Arthur Bearcats, who have been victorious in the Allan Cup playoffs for west and east, will start a best-of-five series for highest senior amateur honors with every indication of a bitterly contested struggle.

Out in Winnipeg the Oshawa Generals will endeavor to square accounts with the last flying Port Arthur in the Prairie Territories in the Memorial Cup final.

It is a coincidence that all three games are being played on the same night and serves as a rich hockey bill of fare for Canadian hockey fans.

TRETT CALLS UP

Detroit, April 16.—(AP)—Detroit Red Wings, who seem to be coming apart at the seams, survived the Stanley Cup playoffs for west and east, will start a best-of-five series for highest senior amateur honors with every indication of a bitterly contested struggle.

The Red Wings, winners of the first three games, but then twice victimized by the revived Leafs, then won 3-0 in Toronto Tuesday night called up three reserves from Indianapolis of the American League to replace the players who have thrived since coach Hay Day revived his lineup.

Coach Eddie Egan, warning, reminding for Detroit since the suspension of manager "Red" Adams for a flake attack on referee Mel Harold, pulled in two forwards, Gus Greenleaf and Joe Fisher and defenseman Doug McCall in place of Eddie and Phil McCarry and Adam Brown.

If these changes meet with the same success Toronto has enjoyed since benching Gordon Drillon, Bucko McDonald and Hank Gullit, today's game should be the most added of this rough and tumble battle.

Each competitor is required to about 20 targets each from the standing, aiming and prone positions and must post a minimum score of 5,660 points.

Production Of Home Oil Hits
Peak In 1941

With a production of 1,164,181 barrels of crude oil during 1941 in the Turner Valley field, Home Oil Company Limited reached a new peak in output in that year, according to the annual report of the directors just released to the signature of R. H. B. Kerr, president of the company.

Production to date is shown as 1,164,181 barrels, of which total Home-Millville No. 2, first producing well of the company, is credited with 745,521 barrels in three years, the heaviest flow of crude oil ever recorded at a Canadian well.

During 1941 Home Oil was the second largest producer of crude oil in Canada, having contributed over 11 per cent of the country's total production for that period. At the year end, Home Oil had nine producing wells in the Turner Valley, Alberta, with three additional wells, Nos. 10, 11 and 12, on the active drilling list.

The report also discloses that seven different companies are now engaged in drilling on locations sub-leased from Home Oil, a substantial return to the company as Home Oil holds an overriding royalty in each case. In addition, the company has reserved the right to participate in 50 per cent of the drilling of further wells. Adoption of this policy will enable the company to establish its reserves without risk of its capital being exhausted by the first such well has already increased those reserves

Whether it happened that way or not we are not quite sure but it is a fact that a wooden tire is now rolling along the pavements of Edmonton.

The tire, first of the kind, to be designed and manufactured in Edmonton, is an attempt to beat the big battle staged by the Japanese against the rubber-hungry populace of this country, was made by the Western Canadian Manufacturing Company at 1104 101 street.

The wooden tire went into service for the first time Tuesday, replacing a rubber tire on a wheel of one of the Woodland Dairy milk wagons.

It was designed and built by J. Sylva and Thomas Hay, proprietors and operators of the Western Canadian Manufacturing Company.

Whether it happened that way or not we are not quite sure but it is a fact that a wooden tire is now rolling along the pavements of Edmonton.

The tire, first of the kind, to be designed and manufactured in Edmonton, is an attempt to beat the big battle staged by the Japanese against the rubber-hungry populace of this country, was made by the Western Canadian Manufacturing Company at 1104 101 street.

McCoy Health Service

The only measure which is of particular value in the struggle against obesity is a normalizing effect and hence may be used either to reduce or to gain. Whether the patient wishes to build up the bust which is too small, or to firm and round the breast which appears to droop or sag, exercise still remains the most effective measure.

In developing a more pleasing effect it must be remembered that the chest plan is to try to work with the muscles which support the breasts and to leave the breasts themselves alone. These latter are formed of fatty tissue, connective tissue and glandular tissue, and are not influenced directly by exercise but may be influenced indirectly through developing the muscles of the chest. When the chest muscles are made firmer by suitable exercise, the breasts become more shapely.

It is my opinion that the woman desiring a more pleasing effect above the waistline should first of all undertake a general body-building regimen, using exercises which strengthen the entire body. This is partly because such exercise will be beneficial to the health as a whole and partly because it will be helpful in establishing the strong muscles needed to maintain good posture. When the posture is poor, it is much more difficult to carry the chest properly, whereas with good posture the chest is carried to the front and a better bustline is shown.

Therefore suggest that instead of concentrating only upon the bust that you go through an all-around exercising schedule each day. When doing this it is all right to add some special exercises which have been found of value in producing the effect of the normal breast.

These special exercises needed for local development will deal with the muscles travelling from the brastrone on either side to the shoulders. By raising your arm over your head you will feel a movement in the muscle to which I refer. That is the muscle with which you are to work chiefly in improving the appearance of the bust.

Most of the exercises taken for the desired purpose will consist of arm and shoulder movements. The improvement thus secured is often surprising to the patient who finds it possible to give the breasts a firmer outline and more pleasing shape simply by concentrating upon better muscle tone.

It is not advisable to change the glandular tissue of the breast. It is as the mammary glands are thereby injured, but it is safe to try upon exercise to tone up the fatty muscles supporting the breasts. Such exercise tends to raise the breasts above the level of the normal, but it is not possible to make them appear to be normally developed.

A good exercise for you to begin with is this one: Lie flat on the back on the floor. Raise both arms until they are straight above the body. Now bring the arms back toward the floor, then forward. This back and forth movement will strengthen the chest muscles. Keep on moving the arms toward the back and toward the front without letting them touch the floor until you are slightly tired. Later, as strength increases, try holding a book in each hand. Exercise is simple enough so that the average woman will be able to do it successfully and so get the good from it. However, in the few cases where anorexia or tendinitis exists, it should be omitted.

All questions regarding Health and Diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 100 words. Address: McCoy Health Service, 1351 West 6th St., Los Angeles, Calif.

A young soldier of a boy in the armed forces will tell you nothing too good for her soldier or sailor brother. As part of her education in wartime participation in the family's commissary department, she will be asked to make a chocolate cake to vote for chocolate as his favorite flavor.

Two and one-quarter cups sifted cake flour, 2½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 cup butter or other shortening, 2 teaspoons grated orange.

Melt chocolate in double boiler. Bring sugar and water to a boil. Cool until lukewarm. Add gradually to chocolate, stirring until blended and cool.

HELEN J. Fabian of New York has held the world championship title twice, and recently won the Eastern States team-four. He is an enthusiastic and popular player, always the first to congratulate his opponents.

Fabian gives a good lesson in today's hand. He left North. After the dummy went down and declarer made just two clubs, an opponent remarked: "How did you dare bid one spade, vulnerable, on only four to the nine-spot? I should think you would bid no trump to keep out of trouble."

Fabian replied, "It was the dummy bid that let my partner sign off. If I should bid no trump, he might go to two or three. I know that, because he has shown a good hand by his reverse. I can't pass, but I must warn him that my hand is weak. So I bid one spade.

Dorothy Dix Says:

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am making plans to leave my husband because the mother insists on living with us. She has her own money and home but will not stay any place but our house, and I am tired of looking at her. Besides, I want my own home and family to myself.

My husband is not willing for me to make his mother-in-law, but I am not going to stand such unkind treatment. I am devoted to each other and I can never love anyone else. Also, we have a two-year-old child, but I am willing to make any sacrifice for my own happiness and will do anything to get away from my mother-in-law. She has gotten on my very, until it is destroying my health. Please advise me what to do.—MRS. G. A.

Answer—Well, I advise you to sit down and try calmly and quietly to figure out the situation and see if you think it is worth while to have her mother-in-law camp down on her, or even her own mother for that matter, with her endless advice and suggestions and telling her she did like and didn't do that. And, anyway, she just wanted to be alone with her husband and baby.

But be that as it may, it is a condition and not a theory with which you have to deal. Apparently whether you want her or not your mother-in-law is a fact, and your question is whether you will be happier with her in your house, or having no money yourself, no husband, no baby, no money except what you earn yourself.

Believe me, you will find it pretty hard to get back your old job after you have been out for two or three years and to have to live in a furnished room, that you will probably have to share with another girl, after you have had your own lovely home.

You get me nearly alone when you don't have the baby's babble to listen to, and a husband is a very comfortable thing to have around the house when the baby comes in, even if he has a mother complex.

So think it all over and make up your mind to make the best of your bargain, and be happy in spite of having mother-in-law always under foot.

No Word Here On Milk Price Scale
An official of the Alberta board of public utility commissioners said Thursday the board has not received any word from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board of a reported announcement of a Canadian-wide price structure for milk.
Officials of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board at Ottawa said Wednesday they anticipated an early announcement of a price structure for milk effective throughout the country. They said it is expected the plan will be in effect by May 1 and that notice has been given that the existing subsidy on our Boarding House

ANOTHER CONVOY REACHES ISLAND STRONGHOLD

Axis Unable To Halt Steady Reinforcements Of Malta

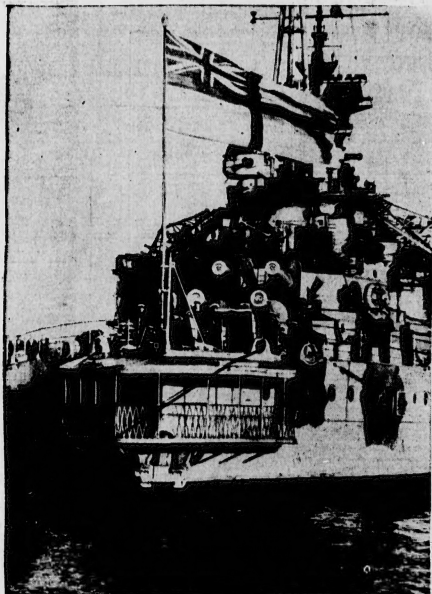

Ships of a British convoy, bearing material and troops, arrived at Grand Harbor, Malta. Ships transversed Atlantic and Mediterranean waters despite incessant assaults from enemy craft both on sea and in the air. Tender comes ashore with officers.

This may look like a harmless embankment to potential invaders from the sea but as you can see it's an earthen revetment which shelters military planes on Pacific West Coast. Purpose of the individual enfolding embankment surrounding each plane is to prevent mass plane destruction by enemy planes.

Might In Mediterranean

To the strains of the English national anthem, the Union Jack goes aloft on the mast of H.M.S. Queen Elizabeth, somewhere in the Mediterranean. The man-o-war is flagship of Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham (saluting at arrow), Commander of British Mediterranean forces.

Ceylon—Where Japanese "Surprise" Backfired

Great swarms of Japanese planes attempted to attack Colombo, capital and main seaport of Ceylon. Its important harbor is shown above. Jap raid was smashed when British defenders shot down at least 32 planes and riddled 25 more. The Japanese, apparently thinking they could catch the defenders napping, killed a "few citizens" with bombs but met with "utter failure" from a military point of view, spokesmen said. Ceylon, famous for its tea, is only 60 miles south of India and could serve as a springboard for a United Nations' offensive against the enemy or be used by the Japanese to invade India and cut off supplies to China and Russia.

Bandaged Beauty

No Helen of Troy, "Queenie" has a face which Englishmen hope may launch a lot of ships. Knocked from her pedestal in a parade supporting Warship Week in the English Midlands, the "Beauty Queen of Bosworth" promptly had her wounds dressed and returned to her task of helping to raise money for more ships.

Lashing Hammock In "Fore Lower"

A destroyer rating of the Canadian Navy has just "rolled out" and is here shown lashing his hammock. Ordinary ratings, young, keen and enthusiastic, ready for anything, begin their life at sea in a destroyer in the "fore lower". There, far from land and deep down in the hull, where you get the full roll of the ship, an O.D. does his first period of service at sea.

California Or Butts!

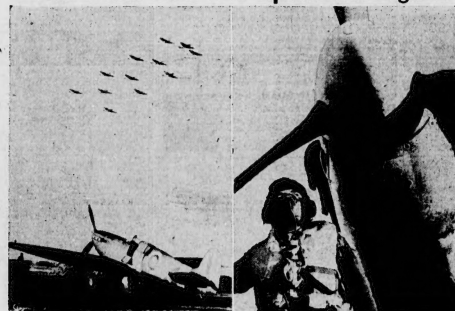

Bert G. Anderson and his two-goat power trailer looked like this when he arrived in San Diego, Calif., after a 1,700-mile trip from South Dakota. After looking the town over, he plans to drive back in his gasless wartime vehicle.

Sun Sets On Part Of The British Empire

Setting sun provides radiant backdrop for British destroyer and corvettes safely anchored in a home port after escorting another convoy to its destination.

Free French Form Own Squadron In England

A Free French pilot is pictured, right, wearing his mask as he poses beside his plane at his base somewhere in England. This airman is a member of the Free French Air Force in Great Britain which is composed of former members of the Armee de L'Air, the Free French Air Arm, who all had remarkable escapes at the time of the French collapse in June, 1940, and of men who have volunteered since that date, coming from all parts of the world. Hitherto, the Free French airmen have been distributed among R.A.F. squadrons, but now the first Free French fighter squadron has been formed under the command of General de Brigade Aerienne Martial Valin, whose rank corresponds with that of air commodore in the R.A.F. A flight of Free French airmen is shown, left, during a training flight.

Milady Gives Up Brass For Bullets

Milady can still buy her lipstick, but from now on she will have to be satisfied with containers made from metal other than brass. The reason for the ban on brass containers is effectively illustrated by pretty Pauline Dechene, of Ottawa. The brass in the container on the left would be sufficient to produce the 303 cartridge case at right. Civilian uses of this essential metal are being increasingly curtailed in order to divert supplies to war production.

R.C. Shipyards Speed Up Production By 25 Per Cent

Seven-Day Week With Day And Night Shifts To Start This Weekend

VANCOUVER, April 16.—(CP)—British Columbia shipyards are expected to turn out five cargo vessels in the same time it formerly took them to build four when they swing into the full time production schedule approved here this week by the shipyard unions.

Man In Court Said Not One Police Accused

Sentence of John Anderson, employee of the British Columbia Shipyard, was postponed for several days when it was revealed that he did not fit the description of the man originally arrested on charges of failing to stop at the scene of an accident and failing to report the accident.

The accident occurred on 72 street between 112 and 114 streets, when a car struck a parked car and hurtled along the boulevard, destroying several cars.

Mayor Urging Big "Yes" Vote In Plebiscite

restoring the municipal status for military service.

The way in which we answer this question will have far-reaching consequences.

A war of the magnitude of the one in which we are now involved cannot be fought with restrictions or a "Business As Usual" attitude. The series of defeats already suffered by the United Nations has shaken our spirit of complacency to the point, I believe, where the great masses of our Canadian citizens are urging and even demanding that our Government, instead of being content with individuals such as the "Yes" men, should make every effort to strengthen the terrible forces that seek to destroy everything we hold dear.

Let us picture to ourselves a vanquished and oppressed people ruled by powers who openly disregard honor and the observance of treaties and international law, justice for all these things swept away in a mad ambition for might, for power and for the terrible forces that seek to destroy everything we hold dear.

Getting Around

matter of the chain between regulations of civilian clothing and regulations for army dress is an example of the government's right to bring being very much in the dark.

In the meantime some of the officers serving in and around Edmonton are wondering which is the greater of two evils.

If they continue to adhere strictly to the regulations, they are in the army services, are they apt to be yanked off to the cooler by a police officer?

And if they decide to eliminate the regulations, will they be the verdict of the courtmartial?

And now women's lives are being made in Edmonton. And they are being made from good Alberta wool.

So perhaps the ingenious solution of the government will carry a setback and carry himself a spare when he has a blowout.

Years ago there was a tire called Royal Oak. Looks as if that kind may stage a literal comeback.

And Alberta, with plenty of trees will again be saved by Saskatchewan and Manitoba, more prairie-like of the prairie provinces.

May 4th Is Set For Arbor Day

By a proclamation signed by Hon. John C. Bowen, lieutenant-governor, Monday, May 4, has been fixed as the date for Arbor Day in Alberta. It was announced at the legislative building Thursday. This is the first Monday in May, which is the date usually set for observance of the tree-planting holiday.

While Arbor Day is not a statutory holiday, it will be observed by provincial government and civil employees, bank clerks and some business firms. The day will be marked generally by the planting of trees.

Airlines Officials Meeting In North

Neal, vice president for Canadian Pacific Airlines, Western Division, and the two will make an inspection tour of the airline's facilities in the Yukon Division.

Mr. Neal is traveling to Whitehorse.
